Ultrasounds at Southern Utah Women's Health Center, P.C.

Patients at Southern Utah Women's Health Center, P.C. have the advantage of having ultrasounds done by their physician in the office. Performing the ultrasound in the office gives our physicians the opportunity to see the scan in "real time" so that they are immediately able to assess the findings and explain them to the patient. The ability to have "immediate" results is a valuable tool for our doctors. Our physicians know that the first peek of a mother's baby on the monitor is a truly wondrous and reassuring moment. This ultrasound is an important bonding experience for many parents. Family members are welcome to come and enjoy this experience.

In addition to ultrasounds during pregnancy, the physicians perform ultrasounds for gynecological conditions such as ovarian cysts or to evaluate pelvic pain. Having the latest technology in ultrasound machines in the office gives each physician the ability to assess the immediate needs of the patient.

To assure that we are meeting and exceeding national standards, Southern Utah Women's Health Center, P.C. maintains accreditation from the American Institute of Ultrasound in Medicine, (AIUM). To achieve our accreditation, we were required to document the extensive training and experience of each physician. In addition to this, each physician is required to accomplish a minimum of 30 hours of continuing education every three years, assuring that they are up-to-date on the latest in ultrasound technology.

Accreditation by AIUM demonstrates this facilities' clinical excellence and its commitment to the highest quality patient care when providing diagnostic ultrasound services. To become accredited, a practice must undergo a rigorous and detailed application process. There is no state or federal law overseeing the performance of diagnostic ultrasound. AIUM accreditation, which is a voluntary process, gives patients the assurance that a facility and its physicians are qualified to perform ultrasound examinations.

The physicians at Southern Utah Women's Health Center, P.C. are committed to quality care that includes the use of ultrasound technology in the office.
